

HOW MANY?

NO ONE KNOWS what the final toll of lives will be. ¶ But this we do know: it depends on us. ¶ It takes hundreds of bombers to rub out one target—tons of shells to soften up one position — endless convoys of ships and trucks to keep one army supplied. All these in overwhelming quantities must be there if we are to lessen losses and heartbreak when the final attack comes. ¶ It's dollars . . . or lives. That is our choice. We—now—are helping to decide how many men will come home to share the victory.
